THE "DANCE OF NATIONS."

J. E. Stickler and Charles Sangster are two young men who have been occupying room 39, McDonald block, for a month past, but they did not sleep there last night. Both were out during the evening, and when Stickler returned to the room about 10 o'clock he discovered a woman sleeping on his sofa. Her hat and coat were lying on the floor. She had not been there long.

The woman's heavy breathing soon convinced the young man that something was wrong. On a stand by her side was a large bottle of morphine. It flashed through Stickler's mind at once that she had taken a dose of the drug. He had no time in summoning Dr. H. Nadeau, who resided on the floor below.

Dr. Nadeau made an examination and found that she had swallowed a sufficient quantity of the poison to cause death, and was already beyond the point of resuscitation. He telephoned for Dr. Bryant, the police surgeon, who confirmed this opinion, so the unfortunate woman was removed to the receiving hospital.

When she was lifted from the sofa it was discovered that she had been lying on a silk pillowcase, revolver, pocket knife, and other articles.

Singer lost by this time also appeared, but both he and Stickler professed never to have seen the woman before, and neither could account for her presence in the room. The door was locked when they went out, and when Stickler returned, it was open and a key in the door. There were two keys, and he had the other in his pocket. Sangster did not explain how she came in possession of his key.

The two men acted in a mysterious manner, and refused to give their names to the reporters or the police. They said they were afraid to keep in the room, and were elsewhere to find lodgings. Detective Stickler, however, recovered the room and ascended them in preparation for the trial that their names were stated above.

There was nothing by which to identify the woman. Detective Stickler, however, at a late hour, ascertained that her name was Lizzie Carroll, and that she was a servant girl for a family named Church living at 136 West Paul street.

Sangster finally admitted that he knew the girl, and that she had been in his room Saturday night till about 9 o'clock.

At 2 o'clock this morning she was still alive, but was expected to die at any moment.

The glove is shipped from the Los Angeles Times. Lizzie Carroll is well known here, coming to Albuquerque several years ago with a companion from Chicago, Illinois, who stopped at the San Felipe. After remaining here a short time, her Illinois friends discovered her, she secured a position through an advertisement in the Citizen at Alcoons in Saco. She remained there a year or more, saying up considerable money, and came back to Albuquerque, where she "rooted" until her funds were exhausted, and she then secured work at the residence of Lawyer Johnson, where she worked faithfully for over a year. She then left and returned a few months later when she met Chase Sangster, then law keeper for A. A. Grant. When Mr. Sangster resigned his position here and returned to California several months ago, Lizzie Carroll followed him. She was a way along, I. M. Sangster, and he died, and they quarreled often while in this city. Her folks reside back in Illinois, and she has a brother who is a printer by trade.

San Pedro Mines.

C. W. Dean, wife and little daughter, all victims, are in the city, coming overland through Tucson canon. Mr. Dean is reporting operations in brick yard. Thornton, J. W., Akers and W. E. Dean were looking over the mines a few days ago, and may invest.

The San Lazareno company has paid off all obligations. One from the Colton mine being handled to San Pedro to be settled in the stamp mill. The Gipsy company is working six men. The Arizona wells of Golden are locked up, not being operated on account of litigation. They are plenty of water which can be procured by the Arizona wells of property worked. A question from Frank C. Smith, named toothicker, asked the number of men, and was pleased with what he saw in the gold fields. Mr. Snow, a capitalist who may invest, went to California yesterday. He may become interested in the Fitzgerald gold placer claims, which are being worked by a process invented by Mr. Fitzgerald. Mr. Dean will return to Gold Hill tomorrow.

At the Opera House.

The "Dance of Nations," which Professor, the well-known dancing master, has labored on to make perfect, was produced last night at the opera house to a large and appreciative audience, and it was a great success. The music was well made and his wife felt like their labors were not in vain, when they scanned the audience and observed the sheet of us" occupying the principal seats.
